Fifteenth International Conference on Current Issues of Sustainable Development „Transition to sustainable production and consumption systems in a globalising world”

Polish Conference of Young Researchers „Contemporary challenges for sustainable production and consumption”

konferencja.sd.uo@gmail.com

Contemporary development trends lead to deterioration of the quality of the environment and the overuse of natural resources, while many different problems in social and economic dimension exist. To a large extent this is a result of unsustainable consumption and production patterns all over the world. The necessity of searching, developing and implementing new solutions of various character and from various spheres seems to be indisputable.

The conference aims at creating a scientific forum for presentation of research results, exchange of views and experience and for discussion on issues regarding foundations, conditions as well as challenges for sustainable development.

The general aims of the conference are to discuss and analyse:

- sustainable energy production and consumption,
- sustainable aspects of global justice,
- challenges in developing sustainable consumption patterns - the role of young generations,
- technologies for sustainable consumption and production,
- sharing economy as a foundation for new interpersonal relations and consumer behaviours,
- the meaning of network organisations in building social connections,
- consumption expenditures on a way towards sustainable development.

The conference is expected to give an answer on one of the most important questions: do efforts and actions aimed at sustainable development really lead to sustainability?
